Conference at St. Louis to Consider the Most Practical Course to Pursue in Advocating the Improvement of the Great River-A Convention Called to Meet at Washington Next February.

St. Louis, July 11 .- The Conference called together through the efforts of the Merchants' Exchange of St. Louis, to consider he mest practical course to pursue in advostirg the improvement of the Mississippi river, met this morning in the Southern Hotel. The Conference is composed of one delegate appointed by representative commercial bodies of every important city in the Valley States. Twenty cities were represented, some of them, especially New Orleans, sending strong delegations. Besides the delegates there were present Gov. Chas. Foster, of Onio; United States Senator Miller, of New York; Speaker Keifer and Ex-here, however, on another mission. The Conference was called to order by J. Ewald, president of the Merchants' Exchange of St. Louis, who, in a brief address I welcome, said the time has come for action in the campaign for the improvement of the Mississippi river. The cause was not a local one, but national, and needs only to be set properly before the people of the country to gain their appreciation, and through them, to force that recognition by our national legi-lators due it and so long denied it. Mr. George S. Wright, secretary of the Merchanes' Exchange Improvement Com-mittee, of S. Louis, read a lengthy and elab-orate argument in favor of the Improvement of the Mississippi river. He referred, in somewhat succession terms, to the readiness with which E stero Congressmen secure appropriations for small streams in their secone, and c niras ed it with the herculear labor necessary to induce Congress to do any thing for the great river.
